Exhibitor Information

About EPA

Eastern Psychological Association (EPA), founded in 1896, is the oldest regional Psychological Association in the United States. Its sole purpose is to advance the science and profession through the dissemination of professional information about the field of Psychology. EPA achieves this goal by conducting its annual meeting where members present the latest advances in professional and scientific work to their colleagues. EPA welcomes psychologists from all fields across the discipline.

Annual Conference

The annual EPA meeting allows researchers from all areas of psychology to present their work in the form of talks, posters, and symposia. Keynote speakers and invited speakers also present at the conference.

Attendance at the Conference

Over 2,300 people attended the last EPA conference that was held in NY. Approximately 400 of the attendees were academic and professional psychologists. The other attendees were both undergraduate and graduate students.
